

CHAUTAQUA AUDIENCE SATISFIED WITH PLAY

"How through it, Mister?" piped a small boy to the Bishop of Lanesboro as the latter was trying to hurry through his sur-drummed Sunday night in "The Servant in the House" at the Chautauque tent.

"Shut up," replied the bishop of Lanesboro, since voice and countenance his impression of the churchman who always gave an little as possible and grating as much as the could.

"Honey speaking, that was as serious as the audience took 'The Servant in the House,' Charles Hays Kennedy's symbolic play of Christianity and Socialism. The actors, gaining their audience and the difficulties attend to upon the presentation of the piece in a text, pointed at the play for comedy instead of symbols.

At times the consider was broad, as when Robert, the scavenger, told the bishop of Lanesboro to "go to 'em." The players, although they betrayed at times a familiarity with the subtle message, for the most part gave the audience what it wanted and no more than it wanted—with a notation of precision: shown in for those who really attend.

When the power of the lines threatened to overpower the audience and make them take the whole thing seriously as concrete protest of the bishop at the back of the tent provided a gigglesome diversion.

It was noted that no one "out to front" was much interested in "The Servant in the House," the Deacon, or Socialism—or the bishop of Lanesboro, for that matter. They were not critical of Hanson, the Servant in the House. That to transgress the people's concepts of Christ several times while seeming to be a personalization of Christ elicited less attention from the men and women on the seats than did the trouble of the girl Mary, who didn't know all the last minute of the play that her father was "the dean minister."

'Premiere' Is Dr. Measwell's Comment.

Some light has broken through the cloud of mystery that has surrounded the reported resignation of Athletic Director W. E. Measwell. Virgil Springer has received a letter from Dr. Measwell in which the latter characterizes the report as "very premature." He does not deny that he contemplated resigning but says nothing has been definitely decided.

There has been much speculation on the matter in athletic circles here and it is the common belief that Doctor Measwell has not communicated officially with the University but has taken the matter up with President A. Rose Hill, who is now in Michigan.

ENGLAND IS EATING LESS MEAT

British Meat Consumption Has Dropped 25 Per Cent Since War.

LONDON, July 24. (By mail)—That the British, long known as the chief meat eating nation of the world, has changed in its taste during the rationing of the war, was the definite statement, supported by statistics, made by Charles A. McCarty, Food Controller, at a press conference in London.

The conference was called to explain the glut of Australian and New Zealand mutton on the market. Mr. McCarty declared that the docks no longer were "disparagingly empty" but that still the government was somewhat embarrassed by the failure of the British public to resume its pre-war consumption of meat.

Here's how Joe's fish story really started

WE CLAMBERED down THROUGH HEAVY thickets. AND WE rowed the boat OUT TO a rocky ledge. WHEN BLACK bass MADE THEM JOE let out a roar. FOR HIS silver bass. HAD FISH lines in it. INSTEAD OF smokes. AND HE refused with poorn. OUR CIGARETTES. HE SAID they were not. EVEN FIT for bait. HE'D HAVE a man's smokes. OR NOTHING. AND FOR an hour. HE GOT nothing. NOT EVEN a bite. WHILE WE pulled 'em in. AT LAST he grunted. "GIMME a cigarette." AND IT just happened. HIS LUCK changed then. SO NOW JOE whined. THAT THOSE cigarettes. WERE SO blessed good. HE SAITED a hook. WITH ONE of them. AND CAUGHT a fish. PARTICULAR FINE, he says. HIMSELF AMONG them. ARE JUST the sort. THAT THEY satisfy.

MANY a sliper smucker will agree that Chesterfields "satisfy." They let you know you're smoking. And just they're mild—mild and smooth. What's the secret? Just knowing how to blend choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—just right!
