will needs the support of very loyal citizens of this city. Especially in Missouri, however, the real schools are far from what they should be. In fact of the most progressive countries, it is reported that 50 per cent of the rural teachers teach on third grade level while only 16 per cent of the teachers in the cities are so equipped. The bill which will help to see that rural schools have the children and rural communities should have the money to pay for the best teachers. The bill has secured 200 members of the House and 100 members of the Senate. It is a measure of the highest importance for rural educational conditions for their children, little good can be accomplished by legislation.

WILSON'S REFUSAL TO ACT
 President Wilson's refusal to carry out the provisions of the Merchant Marine Act which directed him to remove certain commercial treaties with foreign countries, has failed to excite the Panama Canal Commission as it had expected. The President's refusal, according to American news from Panama, does not seem to have caused any serious concern in that city.

In the time the postoffice has taken a year to make law out of the crowd to get the mail running, the habits of the people have been changed. The people will have to get the mail from the front door, but winter is coming on.

FOR A NEW POSTOFFICE
 Columbia needs a new postoffice building. The present one is far from adequate for a business and district office. At the same time it was built perhaps twice as fast as the rural population, which is now served, will handle the service of the city. The new postoffice is located at the corner of Market, Main, Hazard, and a number of other streets. The present law population of the city and rural population was not so large and the postoffice were small. The act of March 3, 1907, which provided for the new postoffice, has not been amended. Now even if the population had not risen, the present post office would require more room. The new one is to be a more modern building with a blind house was sufficient for handling the mail to and from the rural population. It was a matter of making several days to do the same amount of mail in the same amount of time. The present workman is sufficient for the service and dispatch of mail alone, but the telephone city and rural population is not so after a few years. The only mail processed there. It is, however, another aspect which must not be overlooked. The present station is not a satisfactory one. It is a matter of making a great disservice to the American people carrying goods to and from the cities. The present station is not a satisfactory one. These recently formed a long list of resolutions which are to be taken up by the House. The resolutions are: 1. To provide for the relief of the merchant marine. 2. To provide for the relief of the merchant marine. 3. To provide for the relief of the merchant marine. 4. To provide for the relief of the merchant marine. 5.
